Never Mind The Treaty Squabbles. Europe's Real Problem is Babel

By Timothy Garton Ash

The chief lesson of a unique polling project is that the EU's greatest worry is not Brussels – it's 23 different languages http://www.quardian.co.uk/

A Clear European Voice is Missing in The World

Spiegel Online

SPIEGEL ONLINE talks to historian and Oxford professor Timothy Garton Ash about the European Union's weak image in the world, the limits to EU expansion and how Europe should tackle Russia and Iran.

European Missile Defense: The Technological Basis of Russian Concerns

By George N. Lewis and Theodore A. Postol

The Bush administration is proposing to deploy a missile defense that it claims would protect most of Europe and the continental United States against potential long-range ballistic missile attacks from Iran. The Russian reaction to the proposed deployment has been sharply negative.

Putin Tactics could Sway Serbia over EuropeBy Branka Trivic

by branka Trivic

By signalling that Russia's policy on Kosovo is unlikely to change, President Putin could be encouraging Serbia to move away from Euro-Atlantic integration.
